Neal Mathis Under $1,000 Bond After Cutting Scrape

Neal Mathis of Hardin County was released under a $1,000 bond after waiving preliminary hearing on a charge of "Maltreating" cutting with intent to kill, and was bound over to the grand jury.

The charges grew out of Mathis slashing the throat of Rudy Nelson, also of Hardin County, during a fight at the home of Mathis Monday. The fight was brought on, sheriff Volney Brien said, as the result of a quarrel between the men concerning an old grudge.

W. L. Frazier Named Master Pastureman

W. L. "Bill" Frazier was on Tuesday, selected as Marshall County's Master Pastureman in the Kentucky State Green Pasture program, according to County Agent J. Homer Miller.

Mr. Frazier, who has only been a Marshall County since 1945, and operates from being classified as some of the poorest land in the county to the point where he was honored with the selection as the county's leading pastureman.

Coming to the county as an employee of TVA during the construction of Kentucky Dam, he was so impressed with the people and the community that he sold his farm in Kosciusko, Mississippi, and bought 34 unimproved acres on Gilbertsville Route 1, later he purchased enough additional land from the TVA to bring his acreage to a total of 110 acres. He built a home on this land and immediately instituted a program of improvement including extensive use of lime, phosphate, and other improvements to bring his land up to the best possible condition.

Set Fire Prevention Week Oct. 8-14

Call Attention To Dangers Of All Carelessness

By Robert R. Rider, County Forester

Next week is National Fire Prevention Week. Although we usually think of it in terms of buildings, fire prevention is important in our fields and woodland as well.

Every year several thousand acres of fields and woodland are burned over Marshall County. Last spring just two fires burned over nearly 500 acres. Carelessness causes 90% of this destruction.

When a fire burns over a field we lose valuable nitrogen that goes into the air as gas. We lose organic matter, grass, tree seeds and seedlings. It may destroy fences, crops, timber and even farm buildings.

Around The Square

In answer to a very polite letter addressed to the "square" Yes we saw the eclipse of the moon several nights ago and can give you the explanation, also remember the next one will be January 29, 1953.

First, that copper color scientists tell us came from the earth, and if you had been on the moon the earth would have looked at that time to be just a black disc.

At the time of the eclipse the sun's rays were shining from directly behind the earth, as seen from the moon, and shined through the ring of air all around the earth's edges. This ring of air is more than 200 miles deep, although above the first ten miles it is reported to be very rarified. The moon entered the penumbra of the earth's shadow at 7:20 P. M. Benton time. At the moon's glowing edge, at 9:54 totality began, the moon then was completely covered by the earth's shadow. The moon began to emerge at 10:40, the moon left the umbra or black shadow at 12:02 A. M. At 1:13 the moon left the penumbra, ending the spectacle even for astronomers.

Now you know all about the eclipse, just try to explain it to a seven year old as we did.

Jack Wild again pops up with something for this corner, he tells of a man who thinks it might be interesting if every man would wear a stone, maybe a stickpin, to show his vocation, for instance, he says, a dairyman could wear a milkstone, an undertaker a tombstone, an architect a cornerstone, a stockbroker a curbstone, a cobbler a cobblestone, and an editor a blarneystone. He points out though that the thing might get out of hand when you started identifying members of the various branches of a trade or profession, medicine for instance, the nerve specialist probably could get away with wearing a gallstone, but any doctor who thoughtlessly wore his birthstone could expect to be routed out of bed in the middle of the night by a jingling telephone.

Kentucky Fires In 49 Kills 198

Fire waste in Kentucky in 1949: 198 lives and ten million dollars of property. Injuries and "hidden" property losses were many times greater. Do your part to stop this useless waste. During Fire Prevention Week take an inventory of your habits and practices as well as conditions at your home and work. Act safe. Be safe.

Two hazards - unprotected fire places and improper use of kerosene - were responsible for the deaths of fifty Kentuckians and the injury of many more last year. Protect your mothers and children. Place screens in front of open grates; don't use kerosene to start fires.

22% of all deaths by fire in the United States each year are children under five years of age. Safeguard your child by placing matches beyond his reach. Keep a metal screen in front of the fireplace. Keep little fingers away from electrical outlets. NEVER leave your child alone in the house.

Here's an important message to farmers for Fire Prevention Week. A fire cistern full of water ready for use when fire breaks out has helped to save many buildings and lives of people and livestock. Every farm home should also have at least one fire extinguisher.

Last year in our state 198 persons lost their lives due to fire or electricity. Nearly all of the accidents could have been prevented. Kentucky's greatest resource is her people. Let's not waste it.

As you're doing your fall cleaning, examine each room in your home for fire hazards such as defective wiring, electrical extensions under the rug, dark closets lighted by matches or candles, oily rags, papers and rubbish which might cause combustion, defective chimney flue. Guard today against fire tomorrow.

Fire is a killer! It takes 11,000 lives in our country each year. Fires can be prevented! Guard against this public enemy.

If your home burns down tonight, where will you live tomorrow? Guard against fire! Frayed electric cords, rubbish in closets and attics, oily rags in basement and garage - they are public enemies and the friends of FIRE!

TODAY'S FIRE SAFETY FLASH

Fire Prevention Week Oct. 8 - 14

Community participation is worked out and that people will become alert to fire hazards existing in their own community.

In many communities Citizens Health Committees are working with the Fire Chiefs in planning and carrying out the week's program.

One of the highlights of the week's observance in Kentucky will be the broadcast of a fire safety program, emphasizing the need for frequent fire drills in the schools. The broadcast, which is planned for 9 A. M. (EST) on Tuesday, October 10, will feature a statewide fire drill in which it is expected that more than 600,000 pupils and teachers will take part. Plan to listen.

Remember, fire prevention is an important function of public health.

Soil Conservation Notes

By Herbert Anderson
W. A. Doyle, in two years completed his soil and water conservation farm plan on his 96 acre farm one mile east of Calvert City.

Stopping his repair of a gate back of the barn last Monday, Doyle told how complete conservation was paying off for him. "Last spring I bought 12 head of steers, pastured them six months, and sold them a month ago for a gain of $600." Doyle is interested in plenty of good pasture. Drainage of about twelve acres was needed before he could get every acre seeded.

In March, 1947, a request was made to the Marshall County Soil Conservation District for help. Later Yandal Wrather, Soil Conservation Service, went to the farm and together they worked out a complete farm plan.

Eighteen hundred feet of open ditches were surveyed to carry off surface water in a low ponding area. A 700 foot diversion ditch was planned to divert hill water from this low area. In 1948 these ditches were dug and in 1949 the land was improved and seeded for pasture.

A nine acre permanent alfalfa meadow furnishes the small amount of hay needed for winter feed. Two farm ponds, built by earthen dam, stock water. There is a lot of alfalfa now growing on the farm.

Lighting and better drainage on the farm. Doyle says: "The help which I get from the soil conservation district has meant a lot to me in making every acre of my farm as productive as it is today."

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Thompson of Calvert City, Route 2, went to Paducah, La. last week to attend the funeral of Mr. Harold Thompson.

Around the County Farm Front

By J. Homer Miller

Congratulations to the project winners at our first 4-H home improvement day. More than 165 4-H members, leaders and parents were present. Roses to Sharpe, Brewster and Fairclough on winning the singing contests.

Clifton Edwards reports "Where I used tobacco plants in beds treated with bluestone-lime there was much less damage from wildfire and regular leaf spot. The tobacco was in the field and you could tell to the row where the plants were treated".

Cut corn as soon as possible and put the land to a cover lot of grazing this winter and next spring.

A Marshall County Forestry Field Day will be held October 10 on the Glenn Morrison farm. Sawing, chopping, and other tests will be held. Sharpen up the old axe and plan to be there. A good program is planned. Mr. Morrison lives on the farm road in the North West part of the county.

Van Cone and Horace Sledd have a nice field of clover. Fescue seeded in August. Mr. Sledd said, "We seeded with one seeder and followed with a cultipacker - we have a good stand and will be able to graze it in a few days."

National Fire Prevention Week is October 8 - 14. Check your property and remove fire hazards. The best time to put out a fire is before it starts.

Alvie Edwards reports twin calves from one of his grade cows. "She has had 6 heifers and one male in 6 years," he says, "average for an old cow."

John Shemwell is remodeling his house and adding a bath. Many farm homes now have the conveniences of the city with many advantages.

If your strawberries have set a good row wait until you get to fertilize. Phosphate 300-400lb. in late February on each row.

Light Soil Causes Ponding on Corn Field

CINCINNATI—If your soil doesn't drain well, look to the condition of your soil as well as to your drainage system, says the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee. "The slow drainage may be caused by a lack of structure and loss of organic matter," says a statement issued by the committee. "Putting in more drain tile may give you temporary relief, but it is not a permanent solution. Many corn belt soils need unclogging. The structure of silt loams, clay loams and clays has been broken down by too many grain crops and too few legume crops. Working wet soils with heavy machinery has made matters worse. Teamwork of All Plant Nutrients Needed to Make High Crop Yields

PLANT nutritionists have long known that a crop will not reach its full potential unless it receives all the nutrients it needs. The nutrients are divided into two groups: macronutrients and micronutrients. Macronutrients are those that are needed in large amounts, and micronutrients are those that are needed in small amounts. Both groups are essential for the plant to grow and produce a high yield.

A study of the nutrient needs of plants has shown that the most common deficiencies are in nitrogen, phosphorus, and potassium. These three nutrients are the most important for the plant to grow and produce a high yield. The study has also shown that the most common deficiencies in micronutrients are in iron, zinc, and copper. These three micronutrients are also essential for the plant to grow and produce a high yield.

Brewers School News

By Willie Mae Mathis

The school is still in process of rapidly with more improvements being made almost every day.

One big improvement is that concerning the library. Each student is asked to pay a library fee of one dollar, to be used to buy new books, magazines, and pay for subscription for a daily paper. Before long we hope to have our library completed. The basketball players began practice Monday, October 2, with twenty-two boys playing. Two are from the last year's first team. The first home game will be November 3 when they play New Concord. The home class consisting of the sophomore and junior girls, under supervision of Mrs. Telle have begun their sewing unit, they are all making wool garments.

At the regular meeting of the F. F. A. with the following officers presiding in their respective positions: President, Paul Blagg; vice-president, Charles Jones; Secretary, Kenneth Smith; Treasurer, Joe Smith; Sentinel, Terrell Wayne. The program of work for the coming year was discussed and committees set up to write-out the program and submit for approval to the chapter.

The sophomore class presented the first assembly program of the year last Friday. It was a good program and one that we all enjoyed very much. The program consisted of Bible reading and songs were sung by the sophomore quartet and the sophomore girls. We plan to have assembly program at least every two weeks, with one of the twelve grades presenting one each time.

The juniors and seniors

along with their sponsors, Mr. and Mrs. Telle, went on a picnic at Gilbertsville Dam. The picnic was very enjoyable and the refreshments were served by the girls and boys at the Gilbertsville ball park. A week ago Friday was a happy day for each member of the senior class and one which we will all remember. It was the day we received our class rings.

WMS of Calvert Baptist Church Met On Wed.

The Women's Missionary Society of the Calvert City Baptist Church met Wednesday afternoon in the church auditorium. The subject for the day was "The Home as a Missionary Center" and was ably presented by Mrs. Stella Foust.

Mrs. Stella Foust, who was elected to serve as Secretary Treasurer, presented a report on the work of the society during the past year. The report was well received and the society was commended for its work.

The United States built the first airplane in 1790. It was a simple contraption, but it was the beginning of a new era in transportation. Today, we have airplanes that can fly across the world in a matter of hours. This progress is a testament to human ingenuity and the power of the human mind.

Real Wealth

To lack access from the belief that life and substance are material things is to lack real wealth. No amount of money or goods will bring us true happiness if we lack the spiritual foundation upon which to build our lives.

Material values change. Only spiritual values are unchangeable and real. There is only one true source of spiritual wealth—God. As we draw closer to Him, we find that the things of this world are of little consequence compared to the eternal life He offers.

In "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, we read in 200: "In the scientific relation of God to man, we find that whatever blesses one blesses all, as Jesus showed with the loaves and the fishes—Spirit, not matter, being the source of supply." As we grow more fully conscious of the riches of God's love, we find that supply appears sometimes in unexpected ways. Many, because of their oneness with God, cannot be depleted or lack expression of the fullness, the abundance, of Spirit.

The accounts in the Gospels of the feeding of the multitudes offer valuable lessons. Christ Jesus, having given thanks for what was at hand, demonstrated that more than enough was available, and told his disciples to gather up all the fragments so that not even the surplus was wasted. Lack is no part of divine perfection, and neither is waste.

One whose consciousness is filled with loving, unselfish thoughts for all cannot long experience lack. If we are letting in thoughts of ingratitude, anxiety, envy, resentment, and the like, we are accepting limitation and inviting discouragement; we are shutting out love, thereby closing the door to supply.

What do we lack? Have we all that we need today? If so, we have our supply, and our fear is not because of the needs of today but because of doubt as to what tomorrow may bring. Let us not grieve over the yesterdays, nor fear the tomorrows. God's abundance is ever present.

The wise writer of the Proverbs said (20:15), "Give me neither poverty nor riches." When we are willing to allow the law of divine love to govern our thoughts and daily activities, we shall find ourselves supplied with all we need. Jesus said (Matthew 6:33), "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you."

We must seek to understand God, infinite good, and the spiritual concept of man as His reflection. God gives spiritual wealth, not money. He gives nothing that can fade or fail. Yet our understanding of His allience will open our eyes to the supply which meets our human need.

A grateful heart acknowledges good, expects good, and accepts good, and is therefore supplied with good. Good thoughts and qualities, which money cannot buy enrich us—and they are unlimited. . . . The Christian Science Monitor.

GROWING homes for tomorrow!
Your future "roof tree" is growing now!
Yes, actually, your home of tomorrow may still be a growing tree. Our forest lands provide us with the trees which supply the lumber to build our homes. Most of us know that, and value our forests. Yet we cause more than 20,000 forest fires a year from lighted matches, cigarettes, and campfires. Every 12 seconds around the clock our forests supply us with enough new wood to build a home. From them come our furniture, the many paper products we need, and literally thousands of other useful products. Keep that wood growing by keeping back with the forests. Break your matches in half. Crush your cigarettes into the earth. Drawn or completely smother your campfires. KEEP YOUR "ROOF TREES" GROWING!
